Willie Turnesa Is Teaching Golf in Service

Hollywood, Fla., March 1 (AP)—Ensign Willie Turnesa, the only one of the seven golfing Turnesa brothers who refused to turn professional is doing for Uncle Sam the very thing he wouldn't do for money or family unanimity.

He is teaching golf—as well as basketball and other phases of a physical training program designed to make the future crews of dive bombers fit and alert—at the naval air gunners school here.

The 138 National amateur champion thinks it a good joke on his older brothers, and a war time paradox, because he is the only member of the family now making a career of sports.

One of the others—Phil, Joe, Frank, Mike, Doug or Jim—is playing professional golf today. Jim is an army sergeant and the others are in war work.

Despite his experience in instruction gained here through his duties as a member of the physical training staff, the youngest Turnesa still is dead set against becoming a golf pro.

"I never believed in professional sports," he asserted.

"To me, golf is just recreation. I used it indirectly in business, and I planned to earn enough outside of the game so that maybe I could quit when I was about 50—and have a lot of time to play golf."

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Wide World Sports Columnist

New York, March 1 (AP)—Our old friend, Mr. Reliable Source, passes around the tip that Southern California is cancelling its football game with Notre Dame, scheduled for next fall and that Stanford probably will follow suit. Reason is transportation, and all hands likely will book service teams to fill the gaps in the schedules. There'll be a lot more of that before September and our idea is that most colleges not only will depend on freshmen for players but will be playing typical freshman team schedules. The question now arises: How many kids almost 18 years old will think it's worth while to go to college for one season unless some good inducements are offered?

The Indians' Mel Harder plans to keep his job as "expediter" for a rubber company while he's taking his regular turn on the rubber this summer. He figures he can visit sources of material during road trips. Howie Odell has added the Yale public relations job to his football coaching duties.

Racing Meet Enters Second Week at Spa

Hot Springs, March —(AP)—Some of the standout sprinters at Oak lawn Park have been nominated for today's feature race, the six-furlong "Monarch of the Glen Purse," mourning the old Eastman hotel which is now an annex to the Army and Navy hospital.

Mrs. E. C. Nelson's Sassy Lady, still a maiden, will be in first position. Lightly weighted with 109, she will have Kenneth McCombs up. Other nominees:

The Reynolds Brothers' Powder Bluff, 119; Meggy, 114, with Johnny Adams up; Begda, 105; and Bob's Dream, 118.

The event is an allowance race. The fourth race, also six furlongs and also an allowance event, is scheduled to show six probable Arkansas Derby nominees: Blue Shot, War Page, Midall, Toss Up, Modest Lad and Derby Doc.

Durocher Rejected Today by the Army

New York, March 1 (AP)—Leo (The Lip) Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, was rejected by the army today because of a perforated ear drum.

Durocher, who will be 38 years old July 27, took his physical examination with a large number of other inductees and afterward expressed disappointment over failure to pass the examination.

"I knew all along that my ear drum was perforated but I didn't know whether it was serious enough to warrant the army turning me down," said Durocher. "But they showed me right in the book where it was obligatory to turn down a man with such an ailment and that nothing can be done about it."

Durocher said he would confer with President Branch Rickey of the Dodgers later in the day and then go to West Point, probably tomorrow, to take up his duties as advisory coach at the United States Military Academy. The Dodgers are due to report at Bear Mountain for spring training, March 15.

Kiwanis Club Has Garden Plots Available

Do you want to raise a garden this year and don't have a garden plot? Do you want to be assured of plenty of vegetables this summer to help fill the family grocery budget?

If so, the Kiwanis Club has secured locations within the city limits for more than fifty Victory gardens. They have secured locations in all four corners of Hope, and more than likely there will be a location available for you within just a few blocks of your home.

The Kiwanis Club has undertaken the sponsorship of these Victory gardens for this year, due to the probability that there won't be as much vegetables on the market this summer as heretofore. The club wants more locations for their files. Anyone who has a vacant lot should contact Newt Pontocot at the Court House and list it with him. Those who wish a location should immediately contact Newt Pontocot, Sheriff Hill, or B. E. McMath at the AAA office, and a plot will be assigned to them.

Members of the City Council have agreed to enforce the present law which requires that chickens and cows be kept up. This will make it possible to raise that garden without having it fenced.

Aged Resident of Bodcaw Dies Sunday

Lend Lease Not Reason for Shortage

Washington, March 1 (AP)—E. R. Stettinius, Jr., told the Senate foreign relations committee today, lend lease shipments of agricultural products to other countries are not responsible for any food shortage in the United States.

Urging continuance of the program, the lend-lease administrator testified food shipments under his direction totaled only 6 per cent in dollar value of American farm production last year, he added, however, he expects such shipments to double during 1943.

Noting large increases in January shipments of some items such as lamb and mutton, Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) asked of the export trend was going upward rapidly.

Stettinius replied the increase in lamb and mutton shipments from 0.4 per cent of the supply in 1942 to 38.9 per cent in January was a "freak" because of a special demand which he did not detail, as well as the fact the supply was large and the shipping space available.

He said while lendlease shipped 18,000,000 pounds of beef in 1942, this country received 25,000,000 pounds from other countries. He cited the rate of shipment of other critical food items, observing:

"This will prove conclusively that lendlease is not responsible for any food shortage that might be imminent in the United States."

Vandenberg asked if Harry Hopkins, special assistant to the president, "has anything to do with lendlease."

Stettinius replied Hopkins has no official connection with the program, except that reflected by Hopkins' position as chairman of the Munitions Assignment Board. He said, however, Hopkins has been "very helpful" with advice in the operations.

Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky asked about efforts to fly supplies to China and the witness said his organization is "assuming we can do the impossible in getting aid to China" and is bending every effort to increase that aid.

Stettinius said lend lease in reverse makes it necessary to spend no more than $25,000 a month in Great Britain to maintain our army there. Other sources have estimated 500,000 U. S. soldiers are stationed in the British Isles.

CHAPTER I

MISS PAT FRIDAY was in that ominous state of mind known as I-won't-stand-for-it-anymore.

She had, in fact, just ceased to stand for it. Half an hour back she had told the boss where he could go, and it wasn't heaven. Or at least she had implied it, enough to need a new job at once.

Pat was like that. Being a lady is very difficult if the boss is a heel and pays you only $22 a week anyway. Moreover, her job had little or nothing to do with patriotism, adventure or romance, three items which Pat held to be important. And it was down in the second basement, which made her feel like an owl or a mole. Surely there would be a job, somewhere, with a boss who minded his own business and gave her a chance to see the sun. She was rocking now with the Uptown bus, and a fat lady crowded her tight.

"Stop it!" Pat snapped at her, then instantly added, "Oh I didn't mean that! I'm sorry!"

You see? That's the state of mind Pat was in. Touchy. Fed up. She was not the kind who snapped at people. It made her ashamed. She just had to do something, where she had burrowed deeper into the long "Help Wanted" column of the newspaper which she held folded near her nose.

Half way down, a large want ad arrested her. It was in bold face indented type, as if extra important:

SIX YOUNG WOMEN
Wanted; 20 to 25; secretarial, learn soaring while you work, replace men needed in service; must be unincumbered, for travel; $50 a week to start; highest character references; physical examination; source minds only, college graduates. Apply 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, James Carr, Suite 20, Columbia Building.

Pat's mouth made a pretty red O. "For Pete's sake!" she breathed. Avidly she read the want ad again. She moistened her lips. The fat lady stepped on her and went unnoticed. Secretarial. . . Soaring—what the heck is soaring? Replace men. . . fifty dollars. . . physical. . . source. . . Source minds? Pat's brow furrowed.

At 103rd street she left the bus and half trotted to her room. Her mind was whirling. She stood before her bed, a cute somebody unconsciously snapping the elastic band of her new skirt that had cost three whole dollars. Friends would have known that something audacious was cooking in Pat Friday's brain.

IN the Columbia Building at 8:15 next morning, Miss Patricia Friday suddenly realized that, so far, other want ad readers had been as smart as she. Get there early? Nearly 40 girls had that same ideal! The line reached almost back to the elevator. Instantly Pat paused to think.

On quick impulse she turned and went down again. In the corner drugstore she bought an ordinary stenographer's notebook and two pencils. She raced back to the elevator again. A snappy lad of 17 operated it.

"Look here, mister," Pat melted him. "It's worth a dime—no, a quarter—if you hold my hat and coat for an hour. Emergency, see?"

She needn't have offered money; her smile was enough. She mussed her tuffy hair to make it just a trifle unbecoming. She stuck one pencil boldly in the front roll of taffy, donned her severest frown and approached the line of girls once more. There, she spoke loudly.

"You will have to be more quiet." She made it sound as harsh and authoritative as she could. "Mr. Carr would not approve of too much noise, I am sure."

Instantly she had their attention. She was walking primly toward Suite 20, with its closed door. There was still more than half an hour. If only her luck held!

"Give me your names, in turn. I will list appointments starting at 9:15. Remember the advertisement. If you can't fully qualify, I advise you not to wait!"

That took crust, Pat told herself. She felt her hands trembling, but she looked at those girls severely. In a moment she was at the head of the line, rapidly.

She asked questions rapidly, and under each name made a few shorthand notes. In this proceeding, about half the girls departed on their own. But plenty remained and more kept coming, and Pat saw that some held in their manner a defiance as keen as her own.

Then Pat's heart skipped a beat when the elevator door clicked open and out stepped a man in uniform. Intuition drove Pat ahead of him to the Suite 20 door. Here, she faced the climax of her act.

"I have the names of all the applicants," she said. "I assigned 10-minute appointments to each, with the promise of a return for any you thought advisable."

"Excellent," he replied, crisply, fitting a key to the door. "I had no idea there'd be so many! Tell only the first few to wait. Tele-

Traditional Religion Great Handicap to Indian Unity.

If you stood an Indian Moslem and a Hindu side by side you would use little difference in their appearance, and if you followed each of them through his day's routine you would find their pursuits much the same, barring religious observances.

Yet traditions have it that these two are born to eternal enmity because they worship different Gods. Tradition says this means there can be no political unity in India and no solution of the present crisis on a national basis.

Well, that tradition has a lot to substantiate it, including bloodshed and the student of the situation who overlooked this would indeed be shortsighted. We must admit at once that one of the greatest political problems of history is bound up in India's religious animosities and in such interlocking social customs as the Hindu caste system which divides humanity into thousands of more or less iron clad classes.

Tradition's weakness is that it fails to take into account the fact three hundred years ago, or thirty years back, may be untrue to day, and to my mind the question of whether Moslems and Hindus can get along together is far from being the same now as it was a generation ago when I first visited India.

Orthodoxy in the Moslem and Hindu religions has become much more tolerant. India's sons of today are displaying a liberality which their fathers didn't possess.

The consensus among Indians of all classes as I found it was that, despite the indubitable differences, there is no reason why these two religions should not get along together. Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, the greatest liberal leader, put it to me like this:

"I am a Brahmin (the highest and most aristocratic Hindu caste). Last night twenty-five persons including poets dined in my house here, and eleven of them were Moslems."

"In many instances Moslems and Hindus have a common ancestry. We eat the same things, dress the same and live the same, excepting in the south where the languages are different."

"There have been differences between Moslems and Hindus but they are two nations, I stand for a common citizenship."

"The other day I visited a little Hindu village in northern India. In the midst of 113 Hindu families discovered two families of Moslems living in peace with their traditional enemies. These Moslems were carpenters, and the men were building wheels for ox-carts in the common court yard of their little mud huts."

A Brahmin priest, who according to orthodoxy is cmfwpfhrdueuee shadow of an untouchable falls across him, was sitting on a log and chatting with them. I don't suppose for a moment that he would have broken bread with the Moslem, but when I entered the scene they are laughing over some joke he had made, and I strongly suspected that he had been telling them the story of the traveling salesman.

I found many proofs in my travels about India that Hindus and Moslems could live and work together.

Fixed Prices for Farm Crops Seen

Washington, March 1 — (AP) — A move to guarantee farmers fixed prices for their crops gathered momentum in Congress today as legislators struggled to cope with the farm labor shortage without denying the army any needed men.

Senator George (D-Ga.) proposed that the Agriculture Department take immediate steps, which he said could be done without legislation, to guarantee a "fair price" on food and fiber products for 1943 and 1944 as a means of stimulating production.

"I think we ought to fix a floor under crops that would guarantee a fair price for the food and fiber we need and abandon all thought of incentive payments which confuse the farmer and aren't what he wants," George told reporters.

Some action along this line was favored by Senator LaFollette (Prog-Wis.) who said hog production had reached a peak as a result of government action fixing hog prices at a relatively high level.

LaFollette said he thought that the inclusion of farm labor costs in the calculation of price ceilings, as proposed in a measure now awaiting action by the House Rules committee, would help spur production but Senator Butler (R-Ind.) said he thought it was time to for get ceiling formulas and let agricultural prices themselves go up.

Determined to force more immediate action than any which might result from price increases, Senator Bankhead (D-Ala.) sought a showdown in the Senate military committee on his bill to halt the induction of farm workers into the armed forces a measure on which he has obtained the signatures of 40 Senators as co-authors.

Bankhead, chairman of an appropriations subcommittee which has investigated the manpower shortage, contends that the Army set its sights too high in attempting to get 8,200,000 men into uniform by the end of this year.

At the same time he emphasizes that he does not want to do anything that would hamper the war effort, although he believes that the fight could be carried on successfully with fewer men in the ranks and more in the fields.

Senator Green (D-Ill.), a member of the appropriations group, asserted in a minority report to leaders yesterday, however, that those who move to whittle the projected size of the Army might be inviting military defeat.

It is ridiculous to suppose, Green said, that the United States cannot mobilize 11,000,000 men for all of its armed forces and still keep home front production going at full blast.

Senator Austin (R-Vt.) and Rep. Wadsworth (D-N.Y.) expressed gratification over Secretary of War Stimson's endorsement of their bill to draft men and women for factory and farm where necessary.

Stimson, in a letter to Chairman Reynolds (DC) of the Senate military committee, urged prompt passage of the measure because of the evidence of the "increasing evidence of the inadequacy" of present voluntary controls.

Whether the farmer will now redeem his wheat, or hold on a little longer, was also puzzling traders in the wheat pit.

One grain house said, "at present prices there is a substantial profit above the loan price on every bushel now pledged for loans, and it hardly seems probable that producers will let this profit get away from them."

Another House said, "while no doubt farmers were never in a more bullish frame of mind, their selling attitude will be undergoing a severe test now that, for the first time, prices are enough better than the break even point to make it worthwhile to look into redemption of loan wheat."

The same thought was expressed by several other leading grain houses with connections through out the growing area.

"Huge" is the word used to describe the wheat supplies under government loans — they total more than 400,000,000 bushels of the 1942 crop, with 532,955 separate loans made. The average loan is $1.13 a bushel, including some transportation and storage charges.

An important element in the situation is that the face that all loans are due April 30 — on that date wheat which has not been redeemed passes into ownership of the government. The prospect of crowding redemptions of more than 400,000,000 bushels of wheat into a two month period leaves wheat traders appalled.

WARRIORS IN TUNISIA

First great American-German battle of World War II is growing in intensity in Tunisia where our troops, along with British and French forces, fight to capture the last axis foothold in Africa. The pictures show American warplanes—the P-40 Warhawk and P-38 twin-tailed Lightnings—which help gain allied air control over Tunisia; American tanks in North Africa; German soldiers and a Nazi tank; and battle-bound French soldiers with U. S. troops.

Farmers Face Increase in Wheat Prices

Chicago, March 1 — (AP) — Admaning wheat prices today confronted 500,000 farmers with a perplexing, but nevertheless pleasant, problem — is this the time to redeem wheat pledged for government loans and to offer it on the open market?

The problem was presented to wheat growers as a result of the upturn in bread cereal prices last week, when contracts on the board of trade moved to their highest levels since the 1928-29 crop year. Legislative developments in Washington pointing toward better agricultural prices spurred the advance.

Whether the farmer will now redeem his wheat, or hold on a little longer, was also puzzling traders in the wheat pit.

One grain house said, "at present prices there is a substantial profit above the loan price on every bushel now pledged for loans, and it hardly seems probable that producers will let this profit get away from them."

DEDUCTION FOR TRAVELING EXPENSES

To obtain a deduction for traveling expenses, which form an important item in the returns of many taxpayers, certain regulations must be observed. The taxpayer is required to attach to his return a statement showing the nature of business in which engaged, number of days away from home during the taxable year on account of business, total amount of expense incidental to meals and lodging, and total amount of "other expenses" incident to travel and claimed as a deduction. Among the "other expenses" are tips, provided they are reasonable in amount.

Traveling expenses are deductible only when the trip is on business. They are limited to such expenses as are reasonable and necessary in the conduct of the business and directly attributable to it.

Traveling expenses incurred in connection with a journey to another city to accept or seek employment are not deductible. Suburbanites who commute daily from their homes to their place of business are not permitted to deduct the cost of transportation, it being in personal expense.

Claims for deduction for traveling expenses must be substantiated when required by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, showing in detail the amount and nature of the expense incurred.

Atlanta — An Atlanta bank, which had advertised 20 checks for one dollar in a special checking account, received a post card addressed to "Twenty Checks, 58 Marietta St., Atlanta, Ga."

The card came from a woman at Cordelle, Ga.
